

MEDIA CLIPPING

| | | | |
|--------------|---|--------------|--------------------|
| Publication: | The Business Times (Print) | Size: | 1/30 page |
| Date: | May 18, 2020 | Section: | Views From The Top |
| Country: | Singapore | Circulation: | 26,000 |
| Headline: | Views From The Top: The future of frequent flying | | |

Monday, May 18, 2020

THIS WEEK'S TOPIC

Will you resume business travel once the travel curbs are lifted?

The future of frequent flying

Aaron Lee
Chief Executive Officer
Gabkotech Innovations

Business travel will never be the same again even after safety measures have been eased. Enterprises have taken the opportunity to review their corporate travel policies during the lockdown period, and are expected to defer travel plans to next year as part of overall cost-cutting measures. Modern technology such as video conferencing and electronic document signing has proved to be effective and efficient, and I do not see myself rushing to the airport once the curbs are lifted. It is always advisable to hold back any unnecessary travelling until a vaccine has been found or the Covid-19 has completely stopped its ravages.